

I feel broadband over power lines is a bad idea. The fact that the already verified Rf interference within the test area's show this is not only unacceptable but also not worth the hassle of this government agency having to deal with. The last thing we in the general ham community is something more to complain about to the Fcc. Its already taken this government agency 10 years to long to resolve the morse code issue.